

Year 4 Comprehension 10: The Candy Kingdom

Once upon a time, in a magical world far, far away, there existed a Candy Kingdom where everything was made of sweets. The Candy Kingdom was ruled by a wise and jolly Candy King named Willy.

Willy was known for his big candy cane throne and his crown made of gummy bears. He was always surrounded by cheerful candy citizens, including gummy worm gardeners, liquorice rope acrobats, and marshmallow architects.

In the heart of the Candy Kingdom stood the Candy Castle, a magnificent structure made entirely of colourful candy. It had walls of chocolate, a gumdrop drawbridge, and a roof made of cotton candy that sparkled in the sunshine.

One day, three curious friends named Lily, Ben, and Mia heard tales of the Candy Kingdom and decided to embark on an adventure to see it for themselves. Armed with candy maps and a sense of excitement, they journeyed through the Candy Cane Forest, crossed the Jellybean River, and finally arrived at the kingdom's sweet gates.

As they entered the Candy Kingdom, their senses were overwhelmed by the sugary aroma that filled the air. The streets were paved with liquorice, and candy trees lined the boulevards, bearing lollipops and chocolate-covered cherries. Everywhere they looked, there were candy wonders to behold.

Lily, Ben, and Mia explored the Candy Castle, where they met King Willy himself. He welcomed them with open arms and offered them a tour of his candy domain. They marvelled at the gumdrop gardens, tasted the rainbow-colored fountains, and even took a ride on a candy rollercoaster made of liquorice twists.

But the most enchanting part of their adventure was the Candy Carnival. It was a place where candy citizens gathered to celebrate with joyous parades, candy-themed games, and a grand candy buffet. There were candy apple contests, gummy bear races, and marshmallow sculptures.

As the sun began to set, King Willy invited Lily, Ben, and Mia to a special candy feast in their honour. They dined on candy cane spaghetti, ice cream sandwiches, and cotton candy clouds for dessert.

With full hearts and even fuller tummies, the three friends bid farewell to the Candy Kingdom and its delightful citizens. King Willy gave them each a candy key as a token of their visit, promising they could return anytime.

Lily, Ben, and Mia returned to their own world, their hearts filled with the memories of the sweetest adventure they had ever experienced. They knew that the Candy Kingdom would always be there, a magical place where dreams were made of candy and laughter was as sweet as sugar.

And so, in the real world, the three friends continued their adventures, but they always carried a little piece of the Candy Kingdom in their hearts, a reminder that magic and sweetness could be found in the most unexpected places.
