

Year 6 Comprehension 15: The Dreamy Gold Medal

Once upon a time in a cozy little town, there was a girl named Clara. Clara was a cheerful girl who loved to run and jump. She enjoyed playing outside with her friends and was always the fastest in her class. Clara had a big dream. She wanted to win a gold medal at the Olympic Games, just like the athletes she saw on TV.

One sunny afternoon, after a fun day at the park, Clara took a nap in her cozy bedroom. As she drifted off to sleep, she found herself in a magical land where everything sparkled and shone. This was no ordinary dream; it was a dream where anything was possible!

In this magical land, Clara saw a huge stadium filled with cheering crowds. The air was filled with excitement, and Clara could see colorful flags waving in the breeze. She looked around and saw that she was wearing a shiny, blue running suit with the number "1" on it. Clara's heart raced with joy—she was at the Olympics!

As Clara walked towards the starting line, she saw other runners stretching and warming up. They all looked strong and ready. Clara felt a little nervous but remembered how much she loved running. She took a deep breath and focused on her goal.

The race was about to start, and Clara lined up with the other runners. They were all very fast, but Clara was determined to do her best. The sound of the starting gun went off, and everyone began to run. Clara's feet moved quickly, and she felt like she was flying over the track. She could hear the cheering from the crowd, and it made her smile.

Clara ran with all her might. She remembered her practice and how she had always tried her hardest. She kept her eyes on the finish line, and with each step, she felt more confident. The other runners were very fast, but Clara knew she could do it.

As Clara neared the finish line, she could see the gold medal waiting for her. It was shining brightly and seemed to sparkle even more as she got closer. Clara gave it everything she had and pushed herself to run even faster. The finish line was right in front of her, and she stretched out her legs with one final burst of speed.

With a big leap, Clara crossed the finish line first! The crowd erupted in cheers, and Clara felt a rush of happiness. She had done it! She had won the gold medal at the Olympics! The announcer's voice boomed over the loudspeaker, "And the winner is Clara!"

A golden medal was placed around Clara's neck, and she beamed with pride. The medal was beautiful and shiny, and Clara could hardly believe her eyes. The crowd continued to cheer, and Clara waved to them with a big smile. She felt so happy and proud of herself.

In her dream, Clara looked up at the sky, and it was filled with dazzling stars. She felt like she was floating on a cloud of joy. The magical land seemed to sparkle even more, and Clara knew this was a dream she would never forget.

As the dream began to fade, Clara felt herself waking up. She opened her eyes and found herself back in her cozy bedroom. Clara smiled, thinking about her amazing dream. She knew that dreams can sometimes come true if you believe in them and work hard.

Clara jumped out of bed and ran to the park, ready for a new day of running and playing. She felt inspired by her dream and knew that with hard work and determination, she could achieve her big goal of winning an Olympic gold medal one day. Clara's heart was full of excitement and hope for the future.

And so, Clara continued to run, jump, and dream. She knew that with a big heart and a lot of practice, her dreams might just come true. The end.
